

Welcome Note from the Academic Vice President

Dr. Mona Suri
Academic Vice President

Dear RUW Students and Staff,
By the time you read this message, you are well settled into Semester I and meeting many returning friends as well as new friends. For our new friends, take advantage of the many services accessible at RUW to help you achieve your full potential and remember we are here to support you every step of the way. Our goal is to nurture future generations to become citizens who are socially responsible and well equipped for the future.
Students and their Instructors are faced with many challenges to create a productive and an enjoyable teaching and learning experience and graduate real Women Leaders of tomorrow. We face the challenges together through work hard and a warm, personal and caring environment while keeping our teacher-to-student ratio low. Technical advances are driving employability and students need to effectively utilise new and latest technology and follow up the latest development in the IT sector. RUW use the latest technologies and blended classroom teaching methods which positively contributes to the learning experience.
RUW has planned many exciting events this AY to engage both staff and students. Bespoke workshops are planned for faculty to enhance Peer Observation and strengthen students' analytical skills. RUW offers many events to maintain students on the road to graduation and professional success, such as tutoring and workshops on improving research and foreign languages. The recently opened Centre for Italian Language and Culture is a first in Bahrain. The Library and Office of Student Life are here to help, whether you are an online or on-site student. Preparations are underway for the various educational trips where a range of exciting destinations are offered, including London, West Virginia and many more.
The biennial RUW Conference on Women and Society will be held from 31 March to 02 April with the Theme: "Women and the Fourth Industrial Revolution". Both Students and staff are encouraged to participate in the Conference. This is an excellent platform for students to showcase their research projects, acknowledge the benefits of research, nurturing talent, which is crucial for the development of the society. In preparation for the Conference, students can attend the RUW Research Forum, where faculty present their ongoing and completed research.
During the year, students can join the Question and Answer sessions providing an opportunity for us to learn more about you, your plans for your future, and to answer your questions. Concluding this month, the final examinations are just a few weeks away, stay focused in your pursuit of academic achievement and remember Students are our true treasure, and a worthy of the investment and at RUW you will get the personal attention and world learning experiences, preparing you for a lifetime of success.
With Best Wishes
Dr. Mona Suri

RUW Mission

Under the Patronage of Her Royal Highness Princess Sabeeka bint Ibrahim Al Khalifa
RUW organises 3rd Conference on Women and Society:
Women and 4th Industrial Revolution

Under the Patronage of Her Royal Highness of Princess Sabeeka Bint Ibrahim Al-Khalifa, Wife of His Majesty the King of Bahrain and the President of the Supreme Council for Women, RUW will organise the 3rd Conference on Women and Society: Women and the 4th Industrial Revolution, in the Kingdom of Bahrain from 31st March till 2nd April 2020 in Gulf Convention Centre.

The worldwide growing speed towards a more digitised society and economy is predicting that we are at the beginning of a technological revolution that will fundamentally change the way we live and work. The changes brought by the 4th Industrial Revolution will bring changes in power, knowledge, and shifts in wealth. It will create enormous challenges and opportunities. New jobs will be created, new sectors, new products, new services, and new markets. By developing digital platforms, workers will be able to work from home using their working time as they wish offering their work to different countries. This flexibility in work should be accompanied by the growing need for education, training and development of new skills and competences to meet the challenges of the new world of work. Also, this era of digitisation will strengthen the great inequality that exists today in a world where many states and regions have not yet passed through the second and/or the third industrial revolution. In this regard, it is crucial to analyse the problems arising from the 4th Industrial Revolution as well as emerging opportunities, especially regarding the existing gender inequality; because, these developments will surely have a strong impact on the global population, especially on women who represent 52% of the population. Technology has brought countless opportunities across the world in terms of progress in every possible field but is also responsible for more job destructions than globalization itself.

The 4th industrial revolution has deeply transformed our society including the role played by women with interesting variations. Women are actively participating in higher education and undertaking scientific research, leading to Womens advancement globally and in the Kingdom of Bahrain. The Conference aims to highlight how the accelerating pace of technological change affects what roles women can play in the economy, politics, and society. The Conference will also explore the ways to enhance the culture of STEM education in women so that these young women can use technology and entrepreneurship to create economic opportunities. The goal is to discover and share methods countries might deploy for women to lead rather than follow this revolution. Further the contributions made by Bahraini women leading to women advancement will also be explored.

RUW is the first private Higher Education Council accredited, ASEC accredited international university in the Kingdom of Bahrain that is dedicated solely to educating women. This is the third biennial event that RUW will hold following the successful 2016 and 2018 Conferences on Women and Society, attended by more than 300 delegates from over 15 countries where more than 100 research papers were presented. Student poster presentations are a highlight of the event and serve to stimulate a research culture among the region's youth.

Royal University for Women Welcomes Bayan Garden Schools and Al Bassam Private schools from KSA

As part of Royal University for Women (RUW) Strategy in becoming the regional leader in academic excellence for women, RUW welcomed to its campus two International Schools from Kingdom of Saudi Arabia: Bayan Garden Schools and Al Bassam Private Schools, from KSA's Eastern Province. The two schools came upon invitation from RUW to provide Grade 11 and 12 students the opportunity to discover the multi-cultural learning environment and the facilities provided which exceed educational needs for local and international students. Dr. David Stewart, Acting President of Royal University for Women, welcomed the schools alongside Dr. Mona Suri, Academic Vice President of RUW, each briefed the high school students on why RUW is the best choice for their academic excellence. They emphasized the variety of opportunities provided for international students and the remarkable achievements RUW has achieved, such as: recognition in GCC countries, and ASIC Accreditation from United Kingdom. The visiting students were briefed about the colleges and degrees offered at RUW through short presentations delivered from college representatives. RUW Alumnae and current KSA students provided workshops on how RUW is enriching their learning experience and life after academia. A tour around the campus was given for the visiting students to discover the facilities provided in RUW. For example, the Residence which offers an excellent and healthy housing program designed to meet the diverse developmental and educational needs of students living within the university community. Additionally, the visiting students participated in the RUW's Sport Centre activities and fitness classes.
